

SUNDAY "MOVIE" BAN A CALAMITY PASTOR DECLARES

Prominent Newark Minister
Says They Fill a Need and People Demand Them.

Declaring that it would be a calamity to close motion picture houses on Sunday, the Rev. Dr. Henry R. Rose, of the Church of the Redeemer, Universalist, one of the most prominent clergymen of Newark, N. J., last night announced his opposition to the movement of the Federation of Churches to enforce the Sunday closing laws with respect to theatres.

The Federation of Churches last week called upon County Prosecutor J. Henry Harrison of Essex to close motion picture houses on Sunday. Harrison replied in effect that if he started out to do that he would enforce the law impartially with respect to all prohibited Sunday activities, including golf.

"This agitation against Sunday enjoyments is a mistake and is hurting the churches," Dr. Rose said. "There is a distinct need for shows on the Sabbath if run in a clean, high-toned manner. There would be an upheaval of the masses if they were not given this weekly opportunity to have their deeper life drawn out and at the same time to be given refined entertainments."

"People go to moving pictures because they can't get what they want in the churches. The churches and the people are not apart. The people have grown away from the churches, and the churches in not keeping up with the age have receded from the people."

Five hundred to six hundred people were turned away from Dr. Rose's lecture because of insufficient accommodations.

Seized Wine Removed on Government Trucks.

Wine valued at between $50,000 and $60,000 which was seized by Prohibition enforcement officers when the winery at No. 15 and 17 East Third Street was raided on Thursday was removed to the Knickerbocker Warehouse to-day on Government trucks. The proprietors, who were arrested at the time, were held in $1,500 bail on Saturday in the Federal Court for examination and the employees arrested were held in $500 each.

BRIDGE REPLACES RIVERSIDE FERRY

Ends Last Obstacle to Automobile
Traffic on West Shore of Hudson River.

KINGSTON, N. Y., Nov. 14.—With the formal opening of the new Rondout Creek Bridge here on Nov. 20, motorists will be able to travel from Jersey City to Buffalo, passing along the west shore of the Hudson River, without being obliged to use a ferry anywhere along the route, and the last gap on the way across the Empire State will have been bridged. The new bridge will supersede the famous old chain-ferry, Riverside, which has crossed Rondout Creek for nearly a century.

Summer traffic along the route is exceptionally heavy, and it is no unusual occurrence for a string of 100 to 150 cars to assemble on either side of the creek, waiting turns on the ferry.

Subway Traffic Halted at Borough Hall.

Mechanical trouble on an Interborough subway train at Borough Hall station, Brooklyn, to-day, tied up the line for eight minutes in that block of the system. The trouble began at 9:24 and trains were under way at 9:42.
